Area Roundup

Sun Urges Car Pools

GEORGETOWN

The Williamson County Sun is offering free classified ads to commuters who would like to form or join a car pool to save gasoline. Anyone wishing to join a car pool or form one can use the Sun classified section for that purpose without charge. Just by doubling up, the Sun says, commuters can save hundreds of gallons of gasoline daily, and that's one small way they can help in this period of petroleum shortage.

Firm To Appraise Property

BELTON

The Belton school board hired a firm to appraise commercial property in the school district's tax revaluation program. Pritchard and Abbott of Fort Worth will set the valuations on commercial property. The reappraisal is a part of the program to equalize tax values, designed to support a $3 million bond issue.

Blinn To Operate Bus Routes

Blinn College will operate 15 bus routes as a service to the student body this spring. The buses operate within a 13-county area surrounding Brenham. A fee of $30 is charged per student for riding the bus. The transportation director said that about one-fifth of the Blinn student body uses one of the routes that the college operates, providing students living near Blinn the opportunity to remain at home and receive their first two years of college at a considerable saving.

Suit Filed On Liquor Election

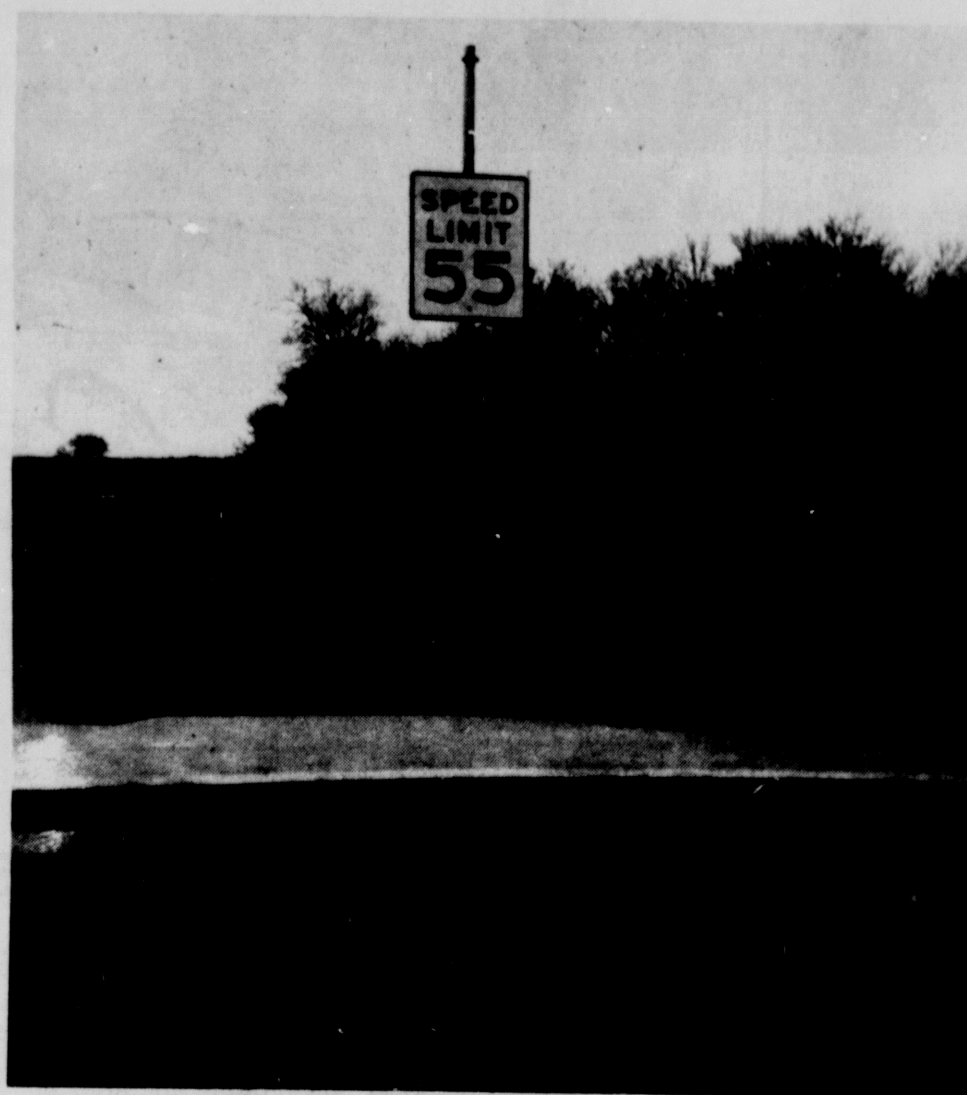

NOLANVILLE

The second suit in less than a year contesting a Nolanville liquor election was filed in 169th District Court. The suit asks the court to declare the Dec. 11, 1973, local option liquor election in Nolanville null and void. The suit alleges that military personnel and their wives living in Nolanville voted in the election and were not legal residents of Bell County. The petition includes 162 names on four lists alleged to be military - connected, who voted in the election.

Fire Rages For 12 Hours

MCGREGOR

Four freight cars of chemicals and oil burned and at least one exploded within the city limits of McGregor Monday morning, sending mushrooming and churning smoke several hundred feet into the air. No one was seriously injured by the blaze that billowed black noxious fume clouds toward Waco. The fire, fed by ruptured tanks of vinyl chloride, and oil, raged for 12 hours before a remaining full tank of vinyl chloride could be pulled away and out of danger of further explosion and fumes.

DRIVERS VIEW: This is the sign that all Texas motorists will be seeing beginning at 12:01 Monday morning (January 21). The State Highway Department in Cameron has completed the changedown to the 55 m.p.h. speed limit, and now all motorists will have to stop their usual 70 m.p.h. driving.

Highway Speed Limit 55 M.P.H. Across Texas

If you see a vehicle going more than 55 miles per hour on a Texas highway after 12:01 a.m. Sunday (January 20) it either is a police, fire or other emergency vehicle -- or it is breaking the speed limit.

The new statewide 55 m.p.h. maximum speed limit goes into effect at one minute after midnight for all classes of vehicles.

Contrary to some circulated reports, there are no exemptions.

Tire research firms in South Texas did ask at a public hearing to be exempted from the lower speed limits. However, the request was not acted on by the Highway Commission.

The lower maximum limit was set January 8 by the Highway Commission, in accordance with state law passed by the Legislature during a special session in December. It empowered the Commission to set lower speed limits to comply with federal energy saving directives.

On January 2, the President signed into law the Emergency Highway Energy Conservation Act. Under it, a state not setting a maximum 55 m.p.h. speed limit could have its share of federal highway funds withheld. In Texas, that would have amounted to a loss of about $240 million per year.

Highway Department crews statewide have been busy since the Commission's order, manufacturing and posting the new speed limit signs along major routes in the state.

The old signs showing 70 as the daytime limit and 65 as the nighttime maximum are coming down and the 55 m.p.h. signs are going up.

There has been speculation that the lower maximum speed limit will reduce somewhat the traffic accident toll. The Highway Department reminded drivers, however, that good driving practices still are needed.

It takes at least 400 feet to stop from 55 miles per hour, for example, and that is under ideal conditions -- good tires, dry pavement and on a clear, sunny day.

Comet Kohoutek Dazzling Fizzle

By Peter Mosley

LONDON

Reuter -- Comet Kohoutek is fading fast. While millions of star-gazers as well as the merely curious scan the evening sky in dwindling hopes of seeing what was billed as the celestial sight of the century, even the Skylab astronauts have more or less turned their backs on it.

Back in March, when it was discovered by Czech astronomer Lubos Kohoutek near the orbit of Jupiter, it was predicted that this latest visitor from outer space could rival the full moon for brightness.

Now Comet Kohoutek, at the very time that it was supposed to be lighting up the sky, is not brighter than a candle in the forest. And although there were some initial mathematical miscalculations, nobody is quite sure why it should have turned out so disappointingly. Comets, it seems, are fated to remain among the least understood of heavenly bodies.

From their vantage point above earth's atmosphere, Skylab astronauts Gerald Carr, William Pogue and Dr. Edward Gibson were able to train a telescope onto the comet.

The mission itself had been delayed, partly to afford them a better view.

The crew even took spacewalks to get a better view.

But the astronauts aimed the telescope at Kohoutek for the last time on Sunday night and got back to studying the earth and the sun. From now on they will confine their comet-watching activities to occasional camera work.

The comet has already faded to about the brightness of the star Polaris -- less than one-fiftieth of the brilliance it achieved at its peak that peak occurred, unfortunately, when it was closest to the sun -- which meant it was mostly obliterated from earthly view.

Probably the most disappointing man was Dr. Kohoutek himself.

He was aboard a special comet-watching cruise aboard the liner Queen Elizabeth 2 in December. But when he stepped ashore at New York he confessed that not only heavy clouds but his own sea-sickness had hampered his vigil.

He said he was fairly sure, however, that he had glimpsed his namesake with his naked eye. "It looked like a faint star with diffusion around it," he said. "But there were many clouds."

Despite its disappointing showing, Kohoutek may still have provided science with a few of the answers to the mysteries of comets.

This one, it is thought, emanated from outside our own solar system.

Its behaviour, plus photographs and telescope sightings -- most particularly those taken from Skylab -- could help determine whether comets are in fact made up of frozen gases and space dust.

A vital clue is the "tail" that comets commonly develop as they approach the sun -- thought to be caused by vaporization of the gases.

As it neared the sun, Kohoutek developed both a tail and a bright yellow-orange spike which pointed towards the sun. According to the Skylabbers, "That certainly is the most beautiful sight -- one of the most beautiful I have ever seen," exclaimed Dr. Gibson.

The tail gradually lengthened into a wispy trailer as Kohoutek fled from the sun.

But the Skylab crew also reported seeing what they called spiderweb of feathery rays on one side of the comet's nucleus, which puzzled and excited astronomers on earth.

For Brazil's National Indian Foundation, Kohoutek's dim performance must have been a blessing.

They had taken the precaution of sending out envoys to explain the pending phenomena to superstitious tribesmen, but some were already convinced it signalled the end of the world and were in a state of panic.

Scientists theorize that Kohoutek is making its first appearance in our solar system for at least two million years and that it won't be back again for another two million.

Probably the best-known comet, Halley's is due to make a return trip to these parts in 1986. But British astronomers calculate that even that sometimes spectacular visitor will next time prove to be only as bright as Comet Kohoutek turned out to be.

New Jail Gets Nod

County Commissioners have agreed to continue plans for a new jail proposed by Emmett Trant and Associates, Bryan Architects funded with Revenue Sharing money.

Commissioners had reviewed a report on alternate funding through the National Clearing House for criminal justice planning and architecture.

Bids for construction are expected to be called in early March with architects estimating construction to cost over $200,000, according to County Judge O. B. Harden.

Commissioners were advised that alternate funds from the Criminal Justice Clearing House would not be available for several years and building requirements for Criminal Justice grants were in conflict with Texas laws on jail facilities.

Judge Harden said particularly at issue were requirements of the National Clearing House for large recreational space, medical services, 24-hour supervision of living quarters, library services and the elimination of separate cells and use of bars and steel plate.

Commissioners also agreed to extend completion date for removal of the McLane building on the jail site to March 1. Clearing of the site originally scheduled to be completed in January, has been delayed because of unfavorable weather.

In other business, Commissioners called for bids on exterior cleaning of the Courthouse and new windows. Bids will be opened February 6.

Judge Harden said frame windows at the courthouse will be replaced by aluminum frame windows. Exterior cleaning will be a combination of sandblasting and chemical-water pressure.

Oompah Band Auditions Open

Folk Fete, Inc., is starting auditions for a German oompah band, according to Charles Kunz, director of the Cameron German Dancers.

Don Csaplinski, director of CISD bands, will audition adult players, over 18, for cornet or trumpet, clarinet, baritone, base (tuba), trap drums and piano.

Auditions will be set up by contracting Kunz at 697-2059.

An eight or nine piece band is being organized, Kunz said. And a piano player also would be included for some of the elements of the fifth Cameron Folk Fete in June.

3 Aldermen, 2 Trustees Up For '74 Votes

Election have been set for the first week in April for Cameron city council and Cameron Independent School District trustees.

Three places are up for election in the city council including the post of Mayor now held by Gene Blake, councilman place 1 held by Lester Turner and councilman place 2 held by Lincoln Mondrik.

City election will be held April 2 with a March 1 filing deadline for candidates.

Two places are up for election in the April 6 School Trustee election. Terms to expire are those held by Calvin Cobb, school board president, and Mrs. Betsy Brown.

Filing deadline in the school trustee election is March 7.

VA Spends $1M In Milam County

The Veterans Administration spent $1,041,321 in Milam County in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1973, according to recently compiled VA figures.

Total for the state was $778,247,694 or an increase of $68 million over fiscal year 1972 expenditures in Texas by the VA.

According to Jerry Brannan and Jack Coker, directors of the Waco VA Hospital and Regional Office, these expenditures in the county included $682,102 in compensation and pension benefits to veterans, $280,017 in vocational rehabilitation and education, and $62,202 in insurance and indemnities.

Eighty-five counties in Texas received over one million dollars in VA compensation, pension, education, insurance and operating cost money Flareup Dramatizes Need...

It was a minor thing, as it turned out. But the possibility of danger and/or disaster was real.

A animal was being led out of the show arena the other day at the annual Milam Junior Livestock Show, held in the wood-frame and sheet metal storage building. It kicked over a kerosene heater, and for a few minutes sawdust on the concrete floor was burning.

The fire was extinguished but only after somebody tried water on a kerosene flame.

The fire never spread nor really endangered the building, but it could have.

Building owners for years have been willing to donate the facility. But with some bleachers this year and this possibility of fire, Livestock Show sponsors have plenty of motivation to look toward a permanent facility, fireproof in construction and with some capacity for heating and/or cooling which would be safe for show visitors.

The 27th renewal of the Milam Junior Livestock Show was a success in funding, participation, showmanship and attendance.

But it is time for a growing operation to find some permanent quarters suitable to the needs of a modern stock show exhibitions and displays of all kinds.

Just a minor flareup dramatized the need.

Constitutional Visit?

Every state senator and representative sitting as a member of the Texas Constitutional Convention hope their constituents will visit Austin during the historic conclave.

Senators and representatives are the convention, divided into eight committees dealing with eight elements of a proposal from the Constitutional Revision Commission which met during much of 1973.

Inevitably, the voter will have to ratify what is done with the old Texas constitution, written in post-Civil War turmoil in 1876, and the form of the new one. Inevitably, too many people pass judgment on even such vital documents with a mere "x" at the ballot box.

Approval of a new constitution is vital to the ongoing development of Texas government. Since central government has undergone over-expansion amidst under-confidence, state and local government never will have greater opportunity to reclaim what so many complain has been taken from the state and local level.

Unless, however, genuine interest in the new proposal and what the Convention does with it finds broad public support apathy may well turn away the opportunity to renew the vital signs of Texas government.

Beside the brevity of the proposal and its model recommendation for the judiciary, this constitution outline calls for a relook every 20 years.

This is the time for personal interest in state government if all the harrangues against government are real. Otherwise we have no right to squawk if our own indifference allows rejection of a new constitution or a weakened version of this proposal.

Why not make your interest known?

Mail That Offends

Three years ago, Congress offered a new kind of protection to people who wanted to stop "sexually oriented" advertisements from arriving in their mail. Anyone so inclined could place his or her name on a special list to be kept by the Post Office. Sending such ads to those on the list was made a crime.

By now, with thousands of names on the list, enough time has gone by for this law to be tested and clarified in the courts.

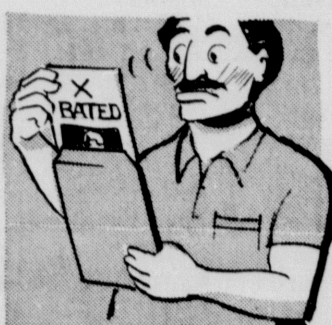

To begin with, the basic idea has been held constitutional, even though it involves some limitation on the freedom of the press. The Supreme Court has ruled that, just as a householder can bar unwanted salesmen from his doorway, so he can bar unwanted ads from his mailbox. The Court said the advertiser's right to communicate does not outrank the right of the householder to be let alone.

To hold otherwise, added the Court, "would make hardly more sense than to say that a television viewer may not twist the dial to cut off an offensive or boring communication."

Publishers also complained of the expense of having periodically to "cleanse" their mailing lists. But a federal court decided, in another ruling, that this was a burden the law could legitimately impose.

"(The) cost of complying with the statute," said the court, "is less than one cent per name, a fraction of the cost of postage, and is not unduly burdensome."

What about the risk that penalties will be imposed on the innocent, for mailings sent by mistake? One worried printer raised that point in court, saying that computer errors might subject him to punishment unfairly.

However, the court said the statute would simply not apply in those circumstances. There would be no criminal offense, the court observed, when there was no criminal intent.

Young Frenchmen Plan To Sabotage Whale Hunts

PARIS -- Two young French ecologists, determined to dramatize the fate of whale species threatened with extinction, are to draw up a "black list" of whale products in France and are going to join the crew of a ship planning to sabotage whale hunts.

Nicolas Desplats and George Dewez, both 23, are spearheading the European side of "Project Jonah" -- a campaign by individuals in eight countries to get Japan and the Soviet Union to halt their harpooning.

So far, with the campaign still in its infancy here, their petition for support has raised 10,000 signatures including those of oceanologist Jacques-Yves Cousteau, volcanologist Haroun Tazieff and Arctic explorer Paul-Emile Victor.

The project originated in 1969 in the United States where its supporters included actresses Ali MacGraw and Mia Farrow. Then it spread to Britain with the blessing of the Duke of Edinburgh and on to France, Australia, South Africa, Norway, Sweden and Canada.

Dewez says that whale hunting by the Japanese and Russians has brought seven species of whale to the brink of extinction.

The first move of the project's French leaders is to hit at the whaler's pockets by drawing up a list of whale products to be boycotted -- among those using whale oil are lipsticks, candles, linoleum and glycerine, while whale meat is used for cat and dog food.

Dewez said: "once our interest is finished we will try and get consumer associations across France to boycott these products. You know, in nearly every case a substitute material can be found."

Next they will join with the

Gunshot Wound Fatal For Klement

Lawrence F. Klement, 34, of Rogers died Friday evening at his home. Justice of the Peace Doyle Lamberth of Temple ruled death was from self-inflicted gunshot wound.

Mr. Klement was born in Cameron and was a member of St. Monica's Catholic Church. He served in the U. S. Air Force from 1957 through 1962.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Alta Fay Klement; three sons, Wayne, Marcus and Myron Klement; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Klement of Rt. 1, Rogers; two brothers, Howard Klement of Arlington and Leroy Klement of Rogers; and a sister, Mrs. Jeanette Pranka of Waco.

Bigham Says Right To Work, Agency Shop Are 'Footballs'

Rep. John Bigham of Temple said today that so-called right-to-work and agency shop propositions are political footballs and should be left out of any new constitution proposed at this time.

Bigham said he is "not adverse to leaving right-to-work as a statutory measure at this time and let the next Legislature, if it sees fit, submit the issue to the voters as a constitutional amendment to be judged alone on its merits."

"I know that strong feel-

Texas Labor Force Up

More workers than ever before were in the Texas labor force in 1973, the Texas Employment Commission says in its annual report to Governor Dolph Briscoe.

The Texas Labor Force reached 5,139,000 last August. Total employment was up 162,000 for the fiscal year and jobless workers represented only 3.4 per cent of the total work force.

Fewer jobless workers claimed unemployment benefits each month during 1973 than in the corresponding month of the previous year.

Net taxes collected from employers were up from the preceding year. The healthy state of the trust fund caused almost 60,000 Texas employers to have their experience tax rates reduced by three-tenths of one per cent, effective January 1, 1974.

During 1973 the Commission placed increased emphasis on one of its basic functions, job placement, the matching of jobseeker and job opening. That led more employers to use the Texas Employment Commission as a source for their workers. Of the 614,285 nonfarm job openings placed with Commission offices during the year, 430,193 were filled. Commission employees made 1.27 million referrals in filling these positions.

The Commission placed more workers in jobs than any other state in 1973.

ings on both sides of the issue spring from deep personal philosophy of the people involved, but the issue in fact is purely political and always has been," Bigham said.

"I think the tremendous pressure pouring into the capitol from both sides proves that point," he said. "Although both sides view the issue as food on the table, they should admit that much greater good can be accomplished for all by the Convention's approval of a basic, pure constitution which can and will earn the acceptance and approval of the people."

"I don't want to believe that either side wants to pull the roof down on Texas rather than lose its factionalized, partisan position, but that is exactly the course both sides are pursuing at this time."

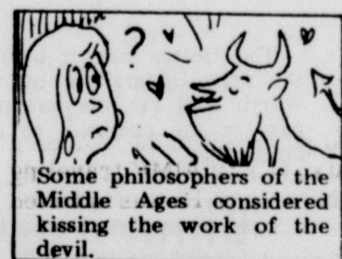

"The issue is political and economic, but not sacred. It therefore belongs in the statutes, not the charter."

Bigham is a member of the Convention Committee on Rights and Suffrages which apparently will consider right-to-work proposals.

Alcoa Adds Engineers

A pair of engineers have been added to the staff of Aluminum Company of America's Rockdale Works.

Dave Luckett, a transfer from Alcoa's Tennessee Operations, and Rick Leser, a recent graduate of Colorado School of Mines, have joined the quality assurance and process engineering staffs, respectively, at the company's largest aluminum-producing plant.

Luckett will become metallurgical supervisor while Leser will be responsible for process engineering in the anode plant.

A native of Madisonville, Kentucky, he joined Alcoa at Tennessee Operations following graduation from the University of Kentucky in 1967 with a master's degree in metallurgical engineering.

Luckett and his wife, Carole, have two children, a daughter, Lena Corynn, and a son, Kenneth David. They will reside in Rockdale.

Leser, a native of Colorado, also studied metallurgy at the Royal School of Mines in London, England, before returning to Colorado School of Mines his senior year. An honor student, he was active in the campus chapter of American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers (AIME) and recipient of the Women's Auxiliary AIME traveling scholarship. He was inducted as an officer into the Army Corps of Engineers last July following ROTC training on campus.

'Saturday Night Specials' Take Toll In Chicago

By Ronald Clarke

CHICAGO

Reuter -- In 1929, at the height of Al Capone's gangster reign in Chicago, 401 people were murdered in the city.

Last year the city had a record 864 reported murders, including only two gangland slayings.

Police say the main reason for the giant increase in the murder rate is the number of cheap revolvers, the so-called Saturday night specials, coming into the city.

Capt. George McMahon, a commander of the Chicago police homicide unit, said there is little that can be done to prevent the murder figure going even higher until stringent laws are passed outlawing the sale, manufacture and distribution of firearms to unauthorized people anywhere in the United States.

Chicago has strong gun registration laws, but many revolvers reach the city from southern states, where gun laws are much more lax. Sometimes the guns come, in parts, through the mail.

"I would like to see it become impossible for any unauthorized person to carry a gun," McMahon said. Another member of the Chicago homicide squad said he would like judges to impose prison sentences on criminals just for carrying guns.

Last year, Chicago police confiscated 16,000 guns, more than ever before. But police believe at least that number of fresh guns arrived in the city.

A total of 615 of the murders last year were committed with guns, mostly with the Saturday night specials.

Statistics show that Saturday night is the most dangerous time of the week in Chicago, partly because people leaving bars after a Saturday night drink are considered easy prey for thugs and partly because heavy drinking sometimes leads to arguments.

The Chicago Bar Association, which represents 11,000 lawyers, has called for a total ban on the ownership of revolvers by unauthorized people. Under its proposal, even members of authorized gun clubs would not be allowed to keep guns at home. But the Illinois state legislature has yet to act on the proposal.

McMahon admits that a criminal will find a way to obtain a gun if he wants one, but tougher gun laws could prevent some of the smalltime thugs from obtaining them.

And the smalltime thug is one of the biggest menaces in Chicago. Last year 18 per cent of the people murdered were robbery victims.

Sam Destefano, who organized a loan shark racket with high interest rates, was murdered on April 17, the first victim of a gangland slaying last year.

On December 20, Richard Cain, a former Illinois state investigator who became a gangland contact man, was talking in a restaurant when two masked men, carrying guns and a walkie-talkie, walked in and lined the customers up against a wall.

Cain was pulled out of line by one of the men, when a look-out man sitting in a car outside reported over the walkie-talkie the street was clear. Cain was murdered with a bun blast in his face.

No one has been arrested but a police captain said no one would have dared murder Cain if a crime syndicate had not ordered his death.

The majority of murder victims last year were aged between 21 and 35 and were black. Most murders were committed on Chicago's west side, which includes a number of slum districts, many predominantly black.

Most of the murders in 1973 were committed while Illinois had no death penalty.

But last November the Illinois state governor, Dan Walker, signed into state law a bill providing the death penalty for murder by a hired killer or murder connected with robbery, rape, arson, kidnaping or sexual abuses.

The law, which follows the ruling by the U. S. Supreme Court against the death penalty, has not yet sent anyone to the electric chair and McMahon said he did not believe the law would reduce the number of murders.

The answer, he said, is to rid the country of the cheap revolvers.

Humidity Can Be Home Problem

During cold weather, homeowners often have difficulty maintaining a suitable relative humidity in their home. And the fuel shortage may aggravate the situation even more this winter, says W. S. Allen, agricultural engineer for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

In homes where the air is too moist, condensation on cold, indoor surfaces causes window sweating, mildew and undesirable odors. To solve such problems, cold surfaces must be warmed or the moisture in the house reduced.

"If the house has a crawl space with no basement, thin sheets of polyethylene plastic can be used to cover the ground under the house," suggests Allen. "Excessive moisture can also be reduced by exhaust fans in the kitchen, bathroom and laundry area, the places that most contribute to raising relative humidity. Such fans need not operate continuously but only when these areas are in use."

In forced air heating systems, introducing outside air to the cold air return often solves the problem.

"Many condensation and sweating conditions on walls and windows may require structural changes to completely remedy the problem," says the Texas A&M University System specialist. "Storm windows and doors and insulation with vapor barriers added to the walls, ceiling and floor usually give good results."

Simply placing a fan in front of a large glass window or door to provide a flow of air over the cold surface will offer temporary relief.

When other measures do not give favorable results, a dehumidifier will provide more positive moisture removal.

For the house with low humidity or dry air problems, Allen suggests such remedies as less frequent operation of ventilation fans and boiling water on the range or heater. "However," warns Allen, "where conditions are severe, the boiling water method will not put sufficient water into the air."

Humidifier units, available in a range of sizes and types, can also be used to add moisture.

"Low humidity means the room temperature must be kept higher for good body comfort," says Allen. "By raising the humidity, occupants will be comfortable at a lower temperature and fuel can be saved."

Raising the relative humidity may also have an advantage in preventing health problems aggravated by too dry air.

Blood normally makes up about 1/13 of a person's total weight. A man weighing 155 pounds has about 12 pounds of blood, or 5 1/2 quarts.

How Does Your Garden Grow Is Panel Subject

"How Does Your Garden Grow" was the program topic for the Fleur de lis Garden Club meeting Tuesday evening at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Douglas Perrin. Club members husbands were special guests for the evening.

Bill McCutchen, county agent, led a panel discussion on vegetable gardening with panel members Monroe Fuchs, William Kelm and Douglas Buck outlining site selections, soil preparation, tools, planting and insect control.

Featured points introduced by the panel included: Selecting a well drained, sunny site that is convenient and away from shrubs and trees;

Soil test (through the county extension service); Pre-planting pesticide controls;

Breaking soil to a depth of about 10" before planting; Planting planned around recommended temperature conditions and 'success stories' of area vegetable gardens.

During a business meeting following the program Mrs. Derwood Cobb announced plans for a district Garden Club meeting, luncheon and program in Cameron March 20. The meeting will be co-hosted by the Civic and Fleur de lis Garden Clubs with over 300 expected to attend.

Mrs. Dana Kestenbaum, Mrs. Douglas Perrin and Mrs. T. H. Wardlaw were appointed to nominate officers for 1974-75. Mrs. Ed Magre and Mrs. Dan McDaniel were appointed to the McCullin Civic Award nominating committee.

Coffee and pie were served to members and guests by the hostesses: Mrs. Ed Magre, Mrs. Roy Boutwell, Mrs. Ed Cauley and Mrs. Perrin.

Baylor To Present Art Talk Series

Baylor University's art department will open its "Lectures in Art" series to the entire Central Texas community.

The series was started last fall to acquaint Baylor art students with innovations and current happenings in the art world. Five professionals in the art world appeared at Baylor under sponsorship of the series last fall. Six more lecturers are scheduled to appear on campus in afternoon and evening sessions of the series.

The first lecturer scheduled for the spring is Suella Lacy, a retired art teacher and artist. Miss Lacy will speak on "Inventions in Fiber" at 4 p.m. Jan. 21 in Room 110 in Carroll Science Building on the Baylor Campus.

Psychologist Advocates Rewards

Dr. Albert Casey told Arts and Service League Members Thursday that love, well timed, reward and punishment and an adult model were prime factors in developing behavior patterns in children that will enrich their adult years.

Dr. Cassey, professor of psychology at Texas A&M University and consultant psychologist for the Milam County Outreach Center, was guest speaker for the Arts and Service League January meeting at the home of Mrs. Richard Crowe in Buckholts.

He focused on love and reward as the most important factors in what psychologists term Behavior Modification, but emphasized that expressions of love and reward should follow an act of cooperativeness.

"As good parents we might feel the time to show love and attention is when the child is being uncooperative," Dr. Casey said. Giving special attention at these times is actually a reward for the child's unfavorable behavior and will encourage him to repeat it. He said this often follows through to a pattern of unpleasant behavior as an adult.

He counseled ignoring or quick punishment for unpleasant behavior and lavish praise for pleasant behavior.

Dr. Casey said a program with male juvenile delinquents in Brazos County was getting positive behavior modification results by employing the reward-punishment-male model methods.

He said that in most juvenile delinquents he had worked with their had been an absence of an adult male model (usually the father) and little reward or punishment.

He said the Brazos County project opened two years ago with 10 male juvenile delinquents. All had been charged with repeated felonies and misconduct. He said a program of points that could be applied toward reducing the individuals probation period, a punishment of removal from the project and the use of male models (volunteer Texas A&M students who spend several hours with the boys twice a week) had significantly reduced the project enrollees behavior problems.

He said the project was too young to be scientifically conclusive, but they hoped it would prove a model for treating juvenile delinquents. "We know that placing them in an institution like Gatesville hasn't worked," he said.

Hostesses for the afternoon, Mrs. Joe Walzel, Mrs. Walter Pyle Jr., and Mrs. Crowe, served coffee and cake following the program.

Hostesses for the tea were Mrs. W. E. Kuehl, Mrs. Gene Blake, Mrs. Gordon Baskin, Mrs. Stanley Vacullin and Mrs. W. M. Price.

Flowers in shades of pink and white decorated the fellowship hall and centered the tea table which was covered in a lace cloth over satin.

Americanism Is Theme For Delphian Club Program

The Cameron Delphian Club met January 15 in the home of Miss Maurine House with Miss Mary Yoe as co-hostess. Mrs. Niley Smith, program leader, spoke on 'Our Heritage: Americanism' and what it meant to her to be an American.

Mrs. E. A. Perrin led in the reading of the American Creed by William Page.

Guest speaker for the afternoon was Yoe High student Tom Jensen who reported on the Farm Bureau sponsored Citizenship Seminar that he attended last July in Waco.

His report included tape recorded speeches by visiting speakers. He closed with the thought that many advances in the scientific world were not sought so much for monetary gain by one individual, but to benefit the masses which in the end is American citizenship.

Coffee and pecan pie were served following the program.

In Overtime Action

Yoemen Down Belton

Coach Max Graham and his Yoe cagers provided Camer- on fans with basketball at its best as the Yoemen over- powered the Belton Tigers, 62-52, in an overtime game in Belton Friday night.

The victory handed the Yoemen an edge on the Tig- ers in the District 12-AAA North Zone race. Cameron now has a 3-1 record and Belton dropped to 2-2.

From the very start of the game, both Yoe and Tig- er fans could sense the im- portance of a victory as the players seemed tense and over anxious to put points on the board.

Cameron was the first to kindle their desire as the Yoemen jumped off to a quick 6-1 lead. However, the Tig- ers pounced back on the Yoe five to move the first quart- er score to 14-12.

In second quarter action, the Tigers moved to a 19- 18 lead with 2 minutes re- maining in the first half. However, Cameron went in with a 23-21 lead as Gary Hornung hit on a long out- side shot, and Jafus White put in a lay up and later a free throw.

When play resumed, the Yoemen again jumped off to a sizable lead, but this time held on to it and went into fourth quarter action with a 32-27 lead.

The Tigers then rallied and pulled past Cameron, 48- 46, with only seconds re- maining in the game. As they ticked off the Yoemen searched desperately for the right combination to throw the game into overtime.

It was found with only 13 seconds left as John Bar- ron tossed in the game sav- ing 2 points from the out- side corner.

When the scoreboard was set for the 3 minute over- time duel, play continued, but this time Cameron domi- nated the action.

The Yoemen were sparked by 6'7" Ronnie Bennett who had come off the bench in the fourth quarter, after be- ing placed there early in the first quarter when he drew 3 personal fouls.

Bennett dominated the backboards, and aided by the ball handling of Hornung and Troy Daniels, he tossed in several key layups.

Cameron outscored Bel- ton 14-4 in the overtime action, and traveled back to Cameron with a hard and well-earned 62-52 victory.

The key to the Yoe vic- tory had to be the ability of the Yoe five to beat the Tiger full court press. It hindered the Yoemen slight- ly in the first half, but in second half action and over- time play, Cameron beat it and put many key points on the board.

Troy Daniels was the high point man for the Yoemen with 15 points, and Booker Russell led Belton with 16. John Barron scored 14 points during the Yoe effort, White 12, Bennett 11, Harry Brooks 4, Hornung 4, and Randy Sapp 2.

Sapp scored his 2 points as he came off the bench to replace the injured Jafus White. The seriousness of Whites injury was not known at press deadline time.

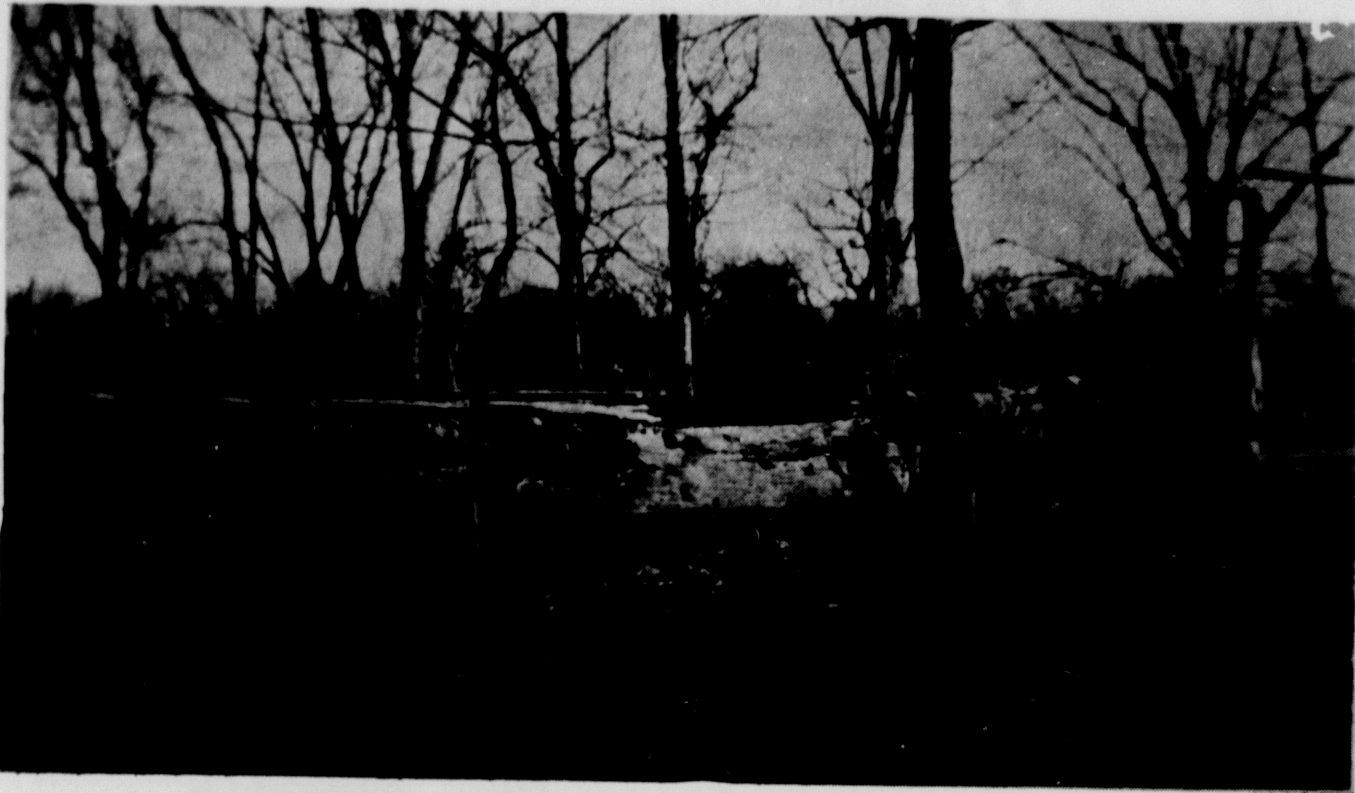

In junior varsity action, Belton defeated Cameron, 65-59, in another overtime game. James Walker was high pointer for Cameron with 26, and David Russell led Belton with 16.

The next Yoe opponent will be the Lampasas Badgers on January 22 in Lampasas. Earlier in the season Cam- eron defeated the Badgers by a 70-34 score.

LIGHTWEIGHT SLUGGER? — Yep and it's really a slugger, says USC coach Rod Dedeaux about the newly NCAA-proved aluminum bat that his team will be using next season. The bats, first brought into being in 1930 by Alcoa, is a major step in reducing the spiraling costs of athletics, says Dedeaux. Even balls not hit squarely jump off the bat with great speed, says the coach who has placed more players in the majors than any other collegiate mentor.

Nornberg states that the nut that produced this tree ripened in October of 1730. This tree was 50 years old when the Declaration of American Independence was signed. In 1836 when Texas won Independence from Mexico, it was 2 feet in diameter and around 110 years old. It was cut in 1929.

Parents Responsible For Firearms

When a father buys his child a firearm, his moral responsibilities go beyond showing the child how to load it and pull the trigger, ac- cording to Texas Parks and Wildlife Department hunting safety officials.

"I'm sure plenty of kids got their first .22 rifle for Christmas," according to T. D. Carroll, head of the de- partment's hunter safety program. "I hop they got some instruction in safety to go with it."

Carroll, who coordinates a statewide hunter safety pro- gram for the department, says it is a mistake for par- ents to assume children will instinctively treat firearms safely.

"It takes only one instance of poor judgement for dis- aster to strike," he said. Ac- cording to Carroll, a disprop- ortionate number of fire- arm accidents involve child- ren 12 years old or young- er. "These children have neither the judgment nor the self-discipline to handle firearms safely with no su- pervision."

As a result, some of these children will shoot them- selves or someone else, usually out of sheer carelessness or ignorance of basic firearms safety rules.

An although it is the child who pulls the trigger, the parent who makes that trig- ger available is to blame be- cause although a firearm is designed for recreational s- port or pleasure, it is still a deadly weapon which can cause injury or death.

For parents who want their children to receive top- notch firearm training, the Parks and Wildlife Depart- ment administers a volun- tary hunter safety program. The course, which is taught by qualified volunteer instr- uctors, includes segments on care of firearms, proper firearm handling, firearm safety and hunting safety.

A call to the local game warden is the best way to find out about the next hunt- er safety course in your area.

TIPS FOR OUTDOORSMEN

by Vern Sanford

Cautious Cruising

If you're on a pleasure kick it's a good rule to never drive your boat farther from home port than one third of your fuel supply.

Reason is—you'll have more than ample gas to return home safely without running the tank dry. After all, this is supposed to be a pleasure trip.

There's not much fun "pad- din'"—even if you're in sight of shore.

Use Dip Stick For Oil

When you have a flat tire and encounter difficulty re- moving tight lugs from the wheel of your car or trailer, a few drops of oil will help loosen 'em up a bit.

No oil handy?

Then remove the dip stick from the engine and let a few drops of the motor oil drip off the measuring stick onto the lug nuts and bolts.

It's not as effective as a squirt of rust remover or a spray can of quick-releasing WD-40, but it's sure better than nothing at all.

Dual Purpose Gun Rack

Put those gun racks in your car to year round use.

When hunting season is over the twin gun rack makes an excellent out-of-the-way place to store your two-piece fishing rods and reels, and especially if they are enclosed in zipper cases.

Instant Stove

If you'll carry four three-pound coffee cans and an old grill in your car, you'll have a handy stove.

Fill the cans with sand and place the grill over them.

And if you'll fill a couple of the cans with water instead of sand, you'll have instant warm dishwater.

Simple Utensil Kit

Does your wife store her "good" silverware in a flannel pocket roll?

Why not use the same idea for your camping knives, forks, and spoons? Use heavy canvas and sew up your own utensil kit... then tie it with a shoe- string (which might come in handy also).

Presto—A Dishpan

Did you ever go camping and find you didn't have a con- tainer big enough to use a dishpan? Dig a hole in the ground and line it with alumi- num foil. Emergency pan!

First Aid

If you should happen to get stung by a bee, and have no remedy handy, a little bit of sugar rubbed over the bee- sting will lessen the pain.

Hogan Sells Interests In Car-Tractor Sales

Bill T. Avrett, formerly of Austin, who two years ago purchased 49 percent interest in Gaither Motor Company and Gaither Ford Tractor Sales in Rockdale, has purchased the balance of the stock in the two firms from

W. P. "Red" Hogan.

Hogan, who has been Owner and General Manager of Gaither Motor Company for 33 years, established Gaither Ford Tractor Sales in 1967.

Hogan will continue to own and operate Hogan & Company, Leasing; Rockdale
Texas Agency, Butane L.
P. Gas Company, Inc.; W.
E. Gaither Company Agents and Hogan Insurance; and will continue as President of Rockdale Mobile Home Sales, Inc.

He is also a partner in H&W Sales Company, H&J Land Company and has real estate interests. As a part of the Sales Agreement, Hogan is to remain active in the dealership for two years.

Avrett, a native of Milam County, attend school in Thorndale, University of Houston, and University of Texas. Before moving to Rock-dale, he was Administrative Manager of a large electronics firm in Austin. Since moving to Rockdale two years ago, Avrett and his family have been active in civic, business and community affairs.

Kubiak Says State Surplus Could Help School Needs

Rep. Dan Kubiak says the $315 million which will be a surplus in the state treasury for the end of the biennium is far more than enough to fund even the most liberal school finance bill ever considered to bring poor school districts up to snuff.

In his weekly newsletter,
he said the Comptroller's report indicated that the state will have such a surplus.

"It's a shame for this money to set idle in the vaults while thousands of Texas school children right now are setting in rundown buildings, riding overcrowded buses and receiving their instruction from underpaid teachers operating with secondhand and obsolete equipment and facilities," he said.

Kubiak was named chairman of the constitutional convention's education committee, and said the work of that committee will be very similar to the task the House Education Committee faced during the regular session of the Legislature.

"We must strive to set up in the raw constitution a system of state and local rights and responsibilities in public education which will safeguard against what we now have in the way of glaring inequities between poor school districts and wealthy school districts," he stated. "We must write a clear mandate to future legislatures that the State of Texas can accept nothing less than total excellence for all districts."

Kubiak said immediate action is needed to alleviate today's problems. "I have repeatedly urged Gov. Briscoe to summon a special session on school finance and now within the last week we have received a state fiscal report which completely cuts the props from under the governor's position," he said.

VALIANT
1
IN NOVEMBER
AND STILL GOING STRONG

Valiant sales for November were the highest among all compacts—almost a thousand more than Nova and almost three thousand more than Maverick.

And with the fine November showing, Valiant has also gained the lead in compact sales for the calendar year 1973. Year to date figures show the following:

Valiant—321,970 Nova—310,498 Maverick—267,994

As you can tell, Valiant has a sizeable lead over the runner up, a strong indication that Valiant's popularity is continuing to grow. The figures also indicate that Valiant is capturing a large share of conquest sales—possibly Standard Size Ford and Chevrolet owners who are moving into the smaller car market, a further demonstration of the strong product appeal built into every Valiant.

WE'RE PROUD TO BE ABLE TO OFFER YOU THE NUMBER 1 COMPACT CAR IN AMERICA TODAY.
